✓ THE FABLE OF
THE ROMANTIC MOUSE ✓

Milton Mouse is a romantic chap. When he serenades Mary Mouse, a shower of brick-bats greets his efforts. So, he slinks away dejected. Now, Thomas Cat, feline roller skating champion, has designs upon the little Miss and hides behind a tree when Mary bids her mother adieu. Tom follows Mary down the road and accosts her. She tells him to stop following her. However, Tom persists and Mary begins to run. As she runs into a hole in a tree Tom grabs her tail and is pulled violently against the tree. Tom is stunned and before he recovers Mary makes her escape. A little later Mary passes Milton brooding over his bad luck in love. When Milton attempts to caress her, Mary seizes his guitar and smashes it over his head. Then, Mary scampers along home. Milton feels entirely out of luck and decides to end his life. He stands in front of a big cannon and lights the fuse, but, the gun explodes and no bullet comes his way. Undaunted in his desire to die, Milton jumps off a cliff. After whirling downward the mouse falls through a chimney and lands upon a bed inside the house and then bounces through a window. Observing a railroad track, Milton lies upon the rails and awaits his doom. The approaching train wends its way down the mountain and through a tunnel. Without lessening speed the engineer drives his train straight ahead and when it comes to Milton, carefully jumps over his little grey body. Tom Cat is determined to catch little Mary Mouse. Attatching a string to a piece of cheese he places it in front of the door of the mouse home. Little Mary falls for the bait and Tom chases her. Her cries for help reach the ears of Milton and he quickly jumps into an auto to give chase. Milton lassoes Tom Cat and permits Mary to escape. The hero jumps out of the auto and embraces his sweetheart. Meanwhile, the runaway auto pulls wicked Tom Cat over a cliff into a pool where he loses his nine lives. Mary and Milton hasten to a church where the preacher makes them one. As time passes, we see them with a large family in the Spring time. And, in the Fall time the family is very much larger. Milton and Mary are burdened with great responsibilities.

Thus we moralize: "Marry In Haste And Repent At Leisure."
